

Email/letter template for Employers – Example 1

This is a sample content that you can use to target employers with regard to the opportunities presented by Auto-enrolment. You should tailor the content to any employers you have relationships with.

Suggested Title: Auto-enrolment is around the corner – what does this mean for your business?

As a business owner and employer, you need to be aware of how the proposed pension auto-enrolment (AE) plans are going to impact your business. AE is getting lots of coverage in the press and the latest consensus is that it will be introduced in late 2025. This is going to directly affect your employees, and you and your business – so now is the time to start planning what approach you will take.

What is auto-enrolment?

The objective of the proposed AE scheme is to ensure that every worker will have access to a workplace pension to supplement the basic state pension. Some of the key features of auto-enrolment are:

- Employees, aged between 23 and 60, earning over €20,000 per annum and not already contributing to supplementary pensions, will be automatically enrolled into the new AE scheme.
- Employers will need to facilitate this and will be required to contribute to it – this is the case even if you already have an existing pension scheme in place for your employees.
- Initial contributions will be 1.5% of gross income from the employee, and 1.5% from their employer.
- This amount will be increased on a phased basis over 10 years with 1.5% added every three years until a total of 6% is reached from both the employee and employer.
- The pension will also be topped up by the State at 33%, with employer and State contributions capped at €80,000 of earnings.

Undoubtedly, AE is a positive change for future Irish generations as it will help more people save for their retirement. As an employer though, you will need to prepare for its introduction.

How can we help you prepare your business?

We have been studying the proposed AE plans for the last number of years and have supported lots of firms like yours with their AE plans. We can help you with:

- Analysing the gap between how many employees you have versus how many are part of your pension scheme, then determining the most appropriate solution.
- Considering the pros and cons of having the employees not currently part of your scheme in the new AE scheme.
- Advising you on the design of your existing pension scheme and making recommendations for the future.

The impending introduction of AE may seem like an additional stress on your business but with our help and support, it is a one that you don't have to do alone.

Email/letter template for Employer where you are the Pension Scheme advisor – Example 2

This is a sample content that you can use to target employers with regard to the opportunities presented by Auto-enrolment. You should tailor the content to any employers you have relationships with.

Suggested Title: Auto-enrolment is around the corner – let's talk about your pension scheme

We've spoken in the past about the number of your employees that haven't yet joined your company's pension scheme – it wasn't a big issue until recently, but that is going to change. As you are probably aware, auto-enrolment is around the corner, and it is going to directly impact you and those employees that haven't joined.

What is auto-enrolment?

The objective of the proposed AE scheme is to ensure that every worker will have access to a workplace pension to supplement the basic state pension. Some of the key features of auto-enrolment are:

- Employees, aged between 23 and 60, earning over €20,000 per annum and not already contributing to supplementary pensions, will be automatically enrolled into the new AE scheme – this means your employees that have yet to join your company pension scheme.
- Employers will need to facilitate this and will be required to contribute to it – this is the case even if you already have an existing pension scheme in place for your employees.
- Initial contributions will be 1.5% of gross income from the employee, and 1.5% from their employer.
- This amount will be increased on a phased basis over 10 years with 1.5% added every three years until a total of 6% is reached from both the employee and employer.
- The pension will also be topped up by the State at 33%, with employer and State contributions capped at €80,000 of earnings.

Undoubtedly, AE is a positive change for future Irish generations as it will help more people save for their retirement. As an employer though, you will need to prepare for its introduction.

How can we help you prepare your business?

We have been studying the proposed AE plans for the last number of years and have supported lots of firms like yours with their AE plans. We can help you with:

- Drawing up a plan that works best for you – this will entail analysing the gap between how many employees you have versus how many are part of your pension scheme, then determining the most appropriate solution.
- Considering the pros and cons of having the employees not currently part of your scheme in the new AE scheme.
- Advising you on the design of your existing pension scheme and making recommendations for the future.

The impending introduction of AE may seem like an additional stress on your business but with our help and support, it is a one that you don't have to do alone.