Week Ahead

25 June

The minutes of the latest Bank of Japan policy meeting are released.

27 June

US GDP for Q1 is expected to be confirmed at 3.1% (QoQ).

28 June

UK GDP and Eurozone inflation data goes to print.

The US Federal Reserve kept rates on hold in their latest FOMC meeting, but kept the door open for potential cuts later in 2019. With inflation remaining muted, coupled with growing economic uncertainty, this gives Fed Chair Powell some flexibility to act. The market is now expecting a rate cut of 25bps before the end of the summer, with the potential for another one before the end of the year. The other major Central Banks globally are also pivoting to more dovish stances. The S&P 500 hit a new high on Thursday, with the 10 year Treasury yield falling below 2% for the first time since 2016. Geopolitical developments did keep optimism in check with barbs being traded by both sides as a US drone was shot down earlier in the week. The ruling AKP party in Turkey suffered a setback, as they lost the Istanbul mayoral election.
