Equities fell last week on the back of some poor global economic data. U.S. manufacturing PMIs caught the headlines last Tuesday as the latest release confirmed a continuing contraction in activity within the sector. This was combined with poor US vehicle sales figures and the non-farm payrolls coming in slightly under consensus expectations. Whilst the hiring numbers have been trending lower in the U.S., there was an upward revision for previous months and unemployment (currently 3.5%) remains at a 50 year low. Within the Eurozone, PMIs were also weak and the latest inflation reading came in at 0.9%, well below the ECB's target of 'below, but close to' 2%. U.K. stocks also endured a torrid time, as the probability of a Brexit deal diminishes with each passing day. Elsewhere, Australia and India both cut interest rates, as the trend of lower interest rates (and therefore bond yield and deposit returns) continues globally.
