

Monthly Investment Review

In July global markets navigated a complex backdrop, shaped by diverging economic signals, evolving policy expectations, and renewed geopolitical developments. Investor sentiment remained cautiously optimistic as resilient corporate earnings and stable economic data helped offset concerns about political instability and fiscal sustainability. Progress on global trade was also a focus as key tariff deadlines approached. Several new agreements were struck, easing fears of an outright trade war. While some tariffs were higher than the average rate of 2.4% before Trump's presidency, markets welcomed the clarity and reduced risk of an escalating trade war. Central banks held rates steady but signalled varying degrees of caution, reinforcing uncertainty around the policy path.

Activity

In July, we increased our short-term US Dollar bond holdings in applicable funds on two occasions, taking advantage of negative sentiment towards the dollar. Currently, our multi-asset portfolios are slightly underweight equities and overweight bonds, though with a modestly short duration. Within our regional equity allocations, we have shifted to a neutral stance in both Europe and Japan. Our underweight position in US equities is balanced by an equivalent overweight allocation to Asia. We remain underweight cash and maintain a long position in corporate bonds. Additionally, from a currency perspective, we are positioned for some dollar strength at this point.

Current Zurich positioning and latest monthly change

Region		Under	Neutral	Over	Market Performance
Equities	Overall Equity Position		↔		<h3>Equity Markets</h3> Global equity markets rose in July, driven by strong Q2 earnings. The Magnificent Seven tech giants continued to post solid earnings growth, helping sustain market momentum. Investor sentiment was further supported by new tariff agreements with major US trading partners, which improved clarity on trade policy. European equities also advanced but some large software and semiconductor firms reported disappointing results and issued cautious outlooks. All sectors finished the month in positive territory. Information Technology and Energy sectors were top performers, returning 7.5% and 5.8% respectively. Health care and Consumer Staples were the worst performers, although still posting positive gains of 0.2% and 0.5% retrospectively.

Fixed Income	Overall Fixed Income Position			↔	<h3>Bonds & Interest Rates</h3> US Treasury yields rose in July, with the 10-year yield ending at 4.4%, reflecting an improved economic growth outlook but also mounting concerns over the fiscal trajectory. Market anxiety intensified after President Trump signed the "Big Beautiful Bill" into law, introducing tax cuts, increased border security spending, and reductions in social security, measures expected to negatively impact the US deficit. The Federal Reserve held interest rates steady at 4.25% - 4.50%, but Chair Powell's press conference was seen as hawkish. Meanwhile, the European Central Bank (ECB) also kept rates unchanged at 2.00%.

	European Credit			↔
Alternatives	Overall Alternatives Position			↔	<h3>Commodities & Currencies</h3> Oil ended July at $72.56 per barrel, as global tensions stayed high, especially after the US struck Iranian nuclear sites in early July and Israel launched airstrikes. Gold returned -0.4% in USD terms, reaching record highs during the month before retreating in the final days amid hawkish signals from the Fed. By the end of the month 1 Euro purchased 1.142 USD from 1.179 USD the previous month end. The EUR/USD pair fell late in July after Chair Powell emphasized the Fed's hesitance to begin cutting rates.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
