

Monthly Investment Review

- Risk assets continued to rally in March, amid a dovish pivot by central banks. At its latest meeting, the Federal Reserve downgraded its growth and inflation forecasts while there is now talk that the next move in US rates may be downwards. US rates had been increased nine times since the cycle turned.
- The ECB also downgraded its growth forecasts. Weak eurozone data has pushed German 10-year bond yields back to negative levels for the first time since 2016.
- Equity markets are closely watching developments in the US-China trade negotiations, Chinese economic data as well as the Q1 earnings results season in the US. Whilst remaining constructive on equities in the longer term, it is possible that the excessive pessimism of late 2018 has given way to over-optimism today. In addition, equity valuations, which were attractive at the beginning of the year, have now normalised.

Activity

Equity positions are towards the middle of ranges in all of the multi-asset portfolios following the decision to take profits at the very start of March. Despite this tactical move, Zurich remains reasonably constructive on equities in general. With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Asia-Pacific while other areas are closer to neutral. Sector positions were broadly maintained during March. The funds are positively biased towards technology and financial stocks and negatively biased towards utilities and real estate. Bond positions are towards the bottom of ranges whilst the duration of the remaining bonds is low. Zurich has recently been increasing its exposure to corporate bonds at the expense of sovereign debt.

Equity & Bond % Returns: March 2019

This graph shows the performance of the major equity markets over the month of March. The returns are shown in both local and euro currencies. The bond index is the Merrill Lynch Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index.

MARKET PERFORMANCE

Equities

World equities (in euro terms) rose by 2.6% in March and have given a strong total return of 14.1% in the first quarter 2019. Local currency returns in March for the major markets ranged from plus 2.4% in the UK to minus 1.0% in Japan. The influential US market was up by 1.8%. Euro currency weakness during the month bolstered returns for eurozone investors. Regarding sectors in the US during March, there was no clear distinction between economically sensitive cyclical stocks and defensive areas. The best performing sector was technology (+4.8%); the worst, financial stocks (-2.8%). Year-to-date, the best performing sectors have been technology (+19.4%), industrials (+16.6%) and energy (+15.2%); the poorest being healthcare (+6.1%) and financials (+7.9%).

Fixed Income & Currencies

The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index rose by a strong 2.7% in March and is up by 3.8% so far in 2019. European bond prices have reacted positively to weaker eurozone economic data. US bonds also performed well last month. The German ten-year bond yield fell during March, moving from plus 0.18% to minus 0.07%. Equivalent US rates moved from 2.72% to 2.41%. Given the Federal Reserve's recent dovish tone, the markets now expect no further rate rises in 2019. In fact, there is now a 50% chance of a cut in rates in December. This is a significant change from six months ago. The euro currency weakened during March against the US dollar with the EUR/USD rate moving from at 1.14 to 1.12.

Alternatives

March saw commodity prices continue their impressive start to 2019 rising by just over 1%, giving a Q1 return of over 8%. Energy prices rose by 3.3% in March whilst non-energy prices declined by 0.3%. After severe declines during much of 2018, the oil price jumped again in March (+5%) and is now up around 30% so far this year on hopes that economic growth concerns in the US and China may have been somewhat exaggerated. The gold price fell by 2% during the month finishing at $1,293 per troy ounce while the copper price was flat.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
