

Monthly Investment Review

- Most major stock markets continued their upward trajectory with the S&P500 Index hitting a fresh all-time high on 26th July. The pirouette by the US Federal Reserve in early June, with rate cuts rather than rate rises now expected during the remainder of 2019, propelled equities and bonds higher. Investor sentiment was lifted by the prospect that the stimulus provided by central banks in the US and elsewhere will be enough to reignite global growth momentum. The first US rate cut in a decade duly arrived on the last day of the month.
- In addition to the prospect for further monetary easing, a decent earnings reporting season in the US also supported equity markets. While the overall earnings figures did not disappoint, forward guidance was not particularly strong.
- Concerns that hurt equity markets in the early summer, namely stalling economic growth outside of the US, the US-China trade tariffs and weak manufacturing data, were once again put on the back-burner.
- Given the current market environment, Zurich believes it makes sense to take a positive stance on equities on a tactical basis. Upside potential appears to be greater for equities relative to bonds and equity valuations outside the US are at, or below, historical norms.

Activity

Equity positions were increased in early June across our range of multi-asset portfolios and there is now a positive bias against the benchmark. Zurich remains reasonably constructive on equities in general, especially given their value relative to bonds. With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Asia-Pacific at the expense of the US. Sector positions were broadly maintained during July. The funds are positively biased towards technology and healthcare stocks and negatively biased towards utilities and real estate. Bond positions are below the middle of ranges whilst the duration of these bonds is now close to neutral, on a tactical basis. Zurich has increased its exposure to corporate bonds at the expense of sovereign debt during 2019.

MARKET PERFORMANCE

Equities

World equities (in euro terms) rose by 2.7% in July and have given a strong total return of 20.2% in the first seven months of 2019. Local currency returns in July for the major markets ranged from minus 2.7% in Hong Kong (on the back of political upheaval) to plus 2.9% in Australia. The influential US market was up 1.3%. Euro currency weakness in July lifted returns for eurozone investors. Regarding sectors in the US during July, there was a mixed picture between economically sensitive cyclical stocks and defensive areas. The best performing sectors were technology (+3.3%) and communications services (+3.0%); the worst, energy (-1.9%) and materials (-0.4%). Year-to-date, cyclical areas have clearly outperformed with the stand-out sector being technology (+30.2%).

Fixed Income & Currencies

The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index rose by 2.4% in July and is up by a strong 11.7% so far in 2019. European bond prices have reacted positively in 2019 to weaker eurozone economic data, benign inflation and an increasingly dovish ECB. The German ten-year bond yield fell again in July moving from minus 0.33% to minus 0.44%. Yes, you are paying for the privilege of lending money to the German government. Equivalent US rates were unchanged at 2.01%. The markets now expect one to two more rate cuts (of 0.25%) in the US during the remainder of 2019. Eurozone rates are expected to be cut by 0.1% from their current ultra low level of minus 0.40% at the end of Q3 or the start of Q4.

Commodities & Currencies

July saw overall commodity prices decline by 1.4%; however, they are up by 5% so far this year. The major gains have come from energy prices in general and the oil price in particular. The oil price was flat in July but is up just under 30% year-to-date. The gold price rose by 1% during the month finishing at $1,426 per troy ounce while the copper price fell by 2%. The euro currency weakened during July against the US dollar with the EUR/USD rate moving from 1.14 to 1.11. The rate began the year at 1.15.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
