

Monthly Investment Review

- Global stock markets moved higher in September following the falls in August, which were caused by escalating US-China trade tensions. Bond yields rose slightly from their recent cycle lows. Last month the Federal Reserve cut interest rates by 0.25%, while the ECB announced several easing measures including a rate cut, restarting quantitative easing (QE) and improving lending terms for banks.
- There remains longer-term concerns over growth, particularly outside of the US. Germany and Hong Kong are likely to be the first regions to record two quarters of shrinking GDP in a row, the definition of a technical recession. Global manufacturing remains in its own recession whilst the global service sector, which had been holding up rather well, has started to feel the pinch.
- With equities now running up against resistance, a new impetus is needed. This could come from US-China trade negotiations or from expanding fiscal policy.
- With many bond markets now in negative yield territory and offering little or no long-term value, Zurich believes it makes sense to take a positive stance on equities.

Activity

Equity positions were maintained at the upper end of ranges across all of our multi-asset portfolios. Zurich remains reasonably constructive on equities in general, especially given their value relative to bonds. With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Asia-Pacific and Europe at the expense of the US. Sector positions were altered somewhat during September with technology being reduced to neutral. The funds are positively biased towards consumer discretionary and materials stocks and negatively biased towards financials and real estate. Bond positions are below the middle of ranges whilst the duration of these bonds has been reduced.

MARKET PERFORMANCE

Equities

World equities (in euro terms) rose by 3.4% in September and have given a strong total return of 22.9% in the first nine months of 2019. Local currency returns in September for the major markets ranged from 6.2% in Ireland to 1.3% in Australia. The influential US market was up 1.7% and remains the strongest so far this year. Euro currency weakness in September increased gains for Eurozone investors in overseas markets. Regarding sectors in the US during September, the main winners were financial stocks which benefitted from the slight pick-up in bond yields. Healthcare stocks underperformed. Year-to-date, the best performing sector has been technology (+29.9%).

Fixed Income & Currencies

The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index fell by 0.5% in September but is up by an exceptional 15.1% so far in 2019. European bond prices have reacted positively in 2019 to weaker Eurozone economic data, benign inflation and an increasingly dovish ECB. The German ten-year bond yield rose in September from minus 0.70% to minus 0.57%. This remains a most unusual situation and means that buying German bonds today guarantees a loss if held to maturity. Equivalent US rates also rose from plus 1.50% to plus 1.66%. The markets now expect three more rate cuts (of 0.25%) in the US during the cycle with two possibly coming before the end of the year. Rates had already been cut in July (the first in a decade) and September. Eurozone rates were cut last month by 0.1% from minus 0.40% to minus 0.50%.

Alternatives

September saw overall commodity prices rise by 2.1% and they are now up 2.4% year-to-date. The oil price was flat during September but is up close to 20% so far this year. The gold price fell by 3.8% as investors rotated out of safe-haven assets, finishing at $1,466 per troy ounce. The copper price rose by 2%. The euro currency weakened slightly during September against the US dollar with the EUR/USD rate moving from 1.10 to 1.09. The rate began the year at 1.15.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
