

Monthly Investment Review

Global equity markets started the year strongly, continuing the impressive momentum experienced towards the end of 2019. The influential U.S. market hit a record high, before ultimately falling back as the impact of the coronavirus began to be felt. The virus hit China at a time when sentiment was still quite fragile given the tentative nature of the trade agreement with the U.S. Markets ended the month in negative territory, but this can perhaps be viewed as a 'pause for breath' following the impressive run in equity prices seen last year. Global bond yields fell as there was a 'flight to safety' around the virus concerns, whilst economically sensitive commodities such as oil and copper also suffered. Earnings seasons is in full swing, with significant divergences evident amongst different sectors, with tech firms providing some of the stand out results.

Risks are of course evident in the market, including unforeseeable events such as the Coronavirus; along with more tangible risks relating to global trade and monetary conditions. However, the global backdrop remains relatively supportive of risk assets versus eurozone sovereign bonds and cash.

Activity

Zurich maintained equity positions towards the higher end of ranges throughout the month of January. In respect of geographic positions, the main bias is towards Europe and the U.K. The U.S., Japan and Asia Pacific are neutral whilst Canada is underweight. On a sector basis, we are positively biased towards technology and healthcare and more cautious towards 'bond proxy' sectors, such as utilities, telecoms and real estate. Our sovereign bond positions remain towards the lower end of ranges across our multi-asset funds. Within corporate debt, or credit, we increased our positions at the end of January. This move was funded out of eurozone sovereign debt.

MARKET PERFORMANCE

Equities

Markets overall rose slightly (in euro terms) in the month of January, with the U.S. (+0.65%) providing the majority of the positive returns. Asia stocks bore the brunt of the coronavirus worries with Hong Kong (-4.8%) the worst performing of the major markets. At a sector level globally, utilities performed strongly (+5.5%) on the back of the sector's defensive characteristics, whilst tech continued its recent outperformance (+3.3%) after a spate of positive earnings announcements. Materials (-5.5%) and energy (-9.2%) were the worst performers as markets assessed the economic impact of the coronavirus, particularly in South-East Asia.

Fixed Income

The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index rose by 3.6% in January, snapping a four-month losing streak. Bond prices reacted positively as concerns over the coronavirus and weaker eurozone economic growth surfaced in January. The German ten year bond yield stood at -0.44% at the end of January, having begun the year at -0.25%. Equivalent U.S. rates moved from 1.92% to 1.52%. Eurozone interest rates are expected to remain at -0.5% for 2020 as President Lagarde completes her review of the ECB's policy framework. The Federal Reserve kept rates unchanged in January at 1.75%.

Commodities & Currencies

Commodity prices fell in January, led by concerns surrounding the impact of the coronavirus on economic activity. Travel and shipping bans in China hit Oil, which fell nearly 15% throughout the month, and Copper was down nearly 9%, in euro terms. The gold price was up 5.3% in euro terms, benefitting from its 'safe haven' status, and finished the month at $1,589 per troy ounce. The Euro weakened against the U.S. dollar, moving to 1.11 throughout January. This provides a tailwind to Irish investors with U.S. dollar holdings, and helped to enhance returns during the month.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
