

Monthly Investment Review

Equity markets suffered further dramatic falls in the first two and a half weeks of March as investors continued to react to the spread of the coronavirus and the hugely negative impact of the lockdown on the overall global economy. Markets rallied in a meaningful way in the second half of March and into April with almost half of the losses being regained. This was mainly on the back of significant monetary policy action and massive fiscal spending by governments around the world. The increasing belief that there is light at the end of the tunnel regarding the number of new infections/deaths has also helped. However, further volatility in equity markets cannot be ruled out in the near-term, especially as we enter a difficult first quarter corporate earnings season. Expectations of the severity of the recession we have just entered will also be important. Despite the uncertainty, Zurich believes that it makes sense to take a positive stance towards equities on a medium to long term basis given the relative value argument against other asset classes, especially government bonds.

Activity

Equity positions were increased in early March following much of the sharp fall. Some profits had been taken in late 2019. The equity content of our multi-asset portfolios is now closer to the top of ranges mainly due to their value relative to bonds. With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Asia ex-Japan. Canada is underweight given its high resources concentration while other markets are close to neutral. Sector-wise, the funds are positively biased towards technology and healthcare stocks and negatively biased towards energy and banks. Bond positions are below the middle of ranges whilst the duration of these bonds is below benchmark.

MARKET PERFORMANCE

Equity Markets

World equities (in euro terms) fell by a hefty 13.1% in March giving a total return of minus 19.1% for the first quarter of 2020. Local currency returns in March for the major markets ranged from minus 7.1% in Japan to minus 21.2% in Australia. The influential U.S. market fell 12.5%. Euro returns had little overall effect – with the currency virtually unchanged against the U.S. dollar. The only important currency moves were weakness in the pound sterling and the Australian dollar. Regarding sectors in the U.S. during March, the smaller negative returns came from healthcare (-3.8%) and consumer staples (-5.3%). Energy (-34.7%) and financials (-21.3%) were the worst performing sectors. Year-to-date, technology has been the best performing sector, down 11.9%.

Bonds & Interest Rates

The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index fell by 2.6% in March giving a return of plus 1.6% for the first quarter of the year. Bond prices initially reacted positively to the coronavirus panic but then came off later in the month as equities rallied. The German ten-year bond yield rose in March moving from minus 0.61% to minus 0.47%. This remains a most unusual situation and means that buying German bonds today guarantees a loss if held to maturity. Equivalent U.S. rates reacted conversely falling from plus 1.15% to plus 0.67%. The Federal Reserve announced on March 3rd the first emergency rate cut (0.50%) since the financial crisis over a decade ago. This was an attempt to give the U.S. economy a jolt in the face of the impending economic slowdown. A further cut of 1.0% took place on 15th March. Eurozone rates remained at minus 0.50% although quantitative easing was reintroduced. Massive fiscal packages were announced globally with the U.S. stimulus programme amounting to a staggering $2tn.

Commodities & Currencies

March saw overall commodity prices fall by a scarcely believable 23.6% resulting in a fall of 34.4% in the first quarter. The main culprit, once again, was oil. The oil price fell by 55% in March, down 66% so far this year, due to concerns over slowing economic growth and geopolitical tensions. The gold price rose by 1.0% during the month finishing at $1,584 per troy ounce. The copper price fell by 12.5% over the month. The euro currency was virtually unchanged during March against the U.S. dollar with the EUR/USD rate remaining at 1.10. The rate began the year at 1.12.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
