

Monthly Investment Review

Equity markets rallied sharply in April, following February and March’s dramatic falls, with almost half of the losses being regained. This was mainly on the back of aggressive monetary policy action and massive fiscal spending by governments around the world. Flattening, and then declining, COVID-19 infection curves also helped and this should lead to the vital lifting of lockdowns. However, further volatility in equity markets cannot be ruled out in the near-term given the contraction of global GDP in Q1 and a collapse in Q2. While liquidity provisions should dominate, unclear short-term valuations and opaque prospects are likely to keep investors on edge. Despite the uncertainty, Zurich believes that it makes sense to take a positive stance towards equities on a medium to long-term basis given the relative value argument against other asset classes, especially sovereign bonds.

Activity

Equity positions of our multi-asset funds were maintained at the upper-end of ranges during April mainly due to their value relative to sovereign bonds. The equity content had been increased in early March following much of the sharp fall. With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Asia ex-Japan. Canada is underweight given its high resources concentration while other markets are close to neutral. Sector-wise, the funds are positively biased towards technology and healthcare stocks and negatively biased towards energy and banks. Bond positions are below the middle of ranges whilst the duration of these bonds is below benchmark. Corporate bond positions were increased further.

MARKET PERFORMANCE

Equity Markets

World equities (in euro terms) rose by a strong 11.2% in April giving a total return of minus 10.1% for the first four months of 2020. Local currency returns in April for the major markets ranged from plus 4.8% in the U.K. to plus 12.7% in the U.S. Regarding sectors in the U.S. during April, the strongest returns came from energy (+30%), consumer discretionary stocks (+21%) and technology (+14%). Defensive sectors, such as consumer staples (+7%) and utilities (+3%), were the worst performing sectors. Year-to-date, technology has been the best performing sector, up 0.2%, and energy the worst, down 36%.

Bonds & Interest Rates

The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index rose by 0.7% in March giving a return of plus 1.2% for the first four months of the year. Despite the risk-on environment during April, quantitative easing gave some support to Eurozone bonds. The German ten-year bond yield fell in April moving from minus 0.47% to minus 0.59%. Equivalent U.S. rates fell slightly from plus 0.67% to plus 0.64%. They had begun the year at 1.92%. The Federal Reserve and other central banks have introduced a wave of liquidity over the last number of months, which has included various forms of asset purchases and interest rate cuts, to support economies and businesses. Huge fiscal packages were also announced globally with the U.S. stimulus programme amounting to a staggering $2tn.

Commodities & Currencies

April saw overall commodity prices fall by 4%, resulting in a staggering fall of 37% in the first four months of 2020. The main culprit, once again, was oil. The West Texas oil price fell by 8% in April, down 69% so far this year, due to concerns over slowing economic growth and geopolitical tensions. The gold price rose by 7% during the month finishing at $1,694 per troy ounce. The copper price rose by 6%. The euro currency was virtually unchanged during March against the U.S. dollar with the EUR/USD rate remaining at 1.10. The rate began the year at 1.12.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
