

Monthly Investment Review

- Positive noises on the U.S.-China trade dispute and signs of stabilisation in some regional manufacturing data in the Eurozone and elsewhere helped boost investment sentiment in November, propelling many developed equity markets to new highs. However, on a more cautionary note, a lot of good news now seems to be priced into markets and whilst underlying momentum is supportive markets could be due a pause.
- There remain longer-term concerns over growth, particularly outside of the U.S. Global manufacturing remains weak, despite the recent stabilising data, whilst the global service sector, which had been holding up rather well, has also started to feel the pinch.
- With many bond markets still in negative yield territory and offering little or no long-term value, equities remain the asset class of choice.

Activity

Equity positions were reduced slightly at the beginning of December, as some profits were taken. This was a tactical rather than a strategic move. Despite this, Zurich maintains a positive bias towards equities across all of our multi-asset portfolios especially given their value relative to bonds.

With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Europe and the U.K. The U.S. has been brought back to neutral from slightly underweight whilst Asia has been moved from overweight to neutral. Sector-wise, the funds are positively biased towards technology and healthcare stocks and negatively biased towards utilities and real estate. Bond positions are below the middle of ranges whilst the duration of these bonds has been reduced.

MARKET PERFORMANCE

Equities

World equities (in euro terms) rose by 3.8% in November and have given a strong total return of 28.1% in the first eleven months of 2019. Local currency returns in November for the major markets ranged from plus 7.0% in Ireland to minus 2.1% in Hong Kong. The influential U.S. market was up 3.4% in November, 25.3% year-to-date. Euro currency weakness in November increased gains for Eurozone investors in overseas markets. Regarding sectors in the U.S. during November, the main winners were technology (+5.2%), healthcare (+4.9%) and financials (+4.8%). Bond proxy sectors, such as utilities (-2.3%) and real estate (-2.0%), underperformed. Year-to-date, the best performing sector has been technology (+41.8%).

Bonds & Interest Rates

The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index fell by 1.3% in November but is still up by a strong 11.9% so far in 2019. European bond prices have reacted positively in 2019 to weaker Eurozone economic data, benign inflation and an increasingly dovish ECB. The German ten-year bond yield rose in November moving from minus 0.41% to minus 0.36%. This remains a most unusual situation and means that buying German bonds today guarantees a loss if held to maturity. Equivalent U.S. rates also rose from plus 1.69% to plus 1.78%. The markets now expect one more rate cut (of 0.25%) in the U.S. during the cycle. Rates had already been cut in July (the first in a decade), September and October. Eurozone rates are expected to remain at minus 0.50%.

Commodities & Currencies

November saw overall commodity prices rise by 1.0% and they are now up 8.2% year-to-date. The oil price has been the main driver of the overall commodity index. The West Texas oil price was up 1.8% in November and is up 21.5% year-to-date. The gold price fell by 3.2% during the month, as investors rotated out of so-called 'safe-haven' assets, finishing at $1,466 per troy ounce. The copper price was flat over the month. The euro currency weakened again during November against the U.S. dollar with the EUR/USD rate moving from 1.12 to 1.10. The rate began the year at 1.15.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
