

Monthly Investment Review

After an extraordinary roller-coaster 2020, investors entered the New Year in a reasonably confident mood supported by central bank action, the roll-out of COVID-19 vaccines and hopes of a brighter economic future. Economic and profit growth forecasts are strong, especially for the second half of 2021, whilst cash levels on deposit are at reasonable high levels. In addition, US Q4 2020 earnings results have been strong in general, comfortably beating analyst' expectations. This does not, however, preclude some setbacks, given the high standalone P/E valuations and the slow vaccination roll-out in Europe. Nevertheless, the strongest support for equities is the relative value argument against sovereign bonds and cash, with the equity risk premium at a 60-year high.

Activity

Equity positions in our multi-asset funds were unchanged during January and remain well above benchmark. With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Asia, Japan and, to a lesser extent, the UK. Positions in Europe were reduced toward neutral due to the tardy vaccine roll-out with proceeds reinvested in the US. Sector-wise, the funds are positively biased towards technology and consumer discretionary stocks and negatively biased towards consumer staples and 'bond proxy' areas. Within the technology sector there has been a tilt from secular into more cyclical stocks. Bond positions are well below the middle of ranges whilst the duration of these bonds is below benchmark. Corporate bonds have been increased at the expense of sovereign bonds over the last ten months.

Market Performance

Equity Markets

World equities (in euro terms) fell by 0.3% in January. Local currency returns for the month for the major markets ranged from 3.9% in Hong Kong to minus 1.5% in Europe. The influential US market declined by 1.1%. Regarding sectors in the US during the month, the strongest returns came from energy (+3.6%) and healthcare (+1.3%), the former being the worst performing sector in 2020. Consumer staples (-5.3%) and industrials (-4.3%) underperformed. Technology stocks, which significantly outperformed last year, were in-line with the market during January.

Bonds & Interest Rates

The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index fell by 0.3% in January. The German ten-year bond yield was moved upwards from minus 0.57% to minus 0.52% with Eurozone bonds continuing to offer no long term value. Equivalent US rates rose from 0.92% to 1.07%. The Federal Reserve and other central banks have introduced a wave of liquidity since the outbreak of COVID-19 which has included various forms of asset purchases, to support economies and businesses.

Commodities & Currencies

January saw overall commodity prices rise by a strong 3.8%, the main support coming from oil. Oil prices rose in January by around 8% following heavy falls during 2020. The gold price fell back by 2.5% during the month, to $1,847 per troy ounce, following a 24.4% rise in dollar terms during 2020. The copper price rose by 1.1% during January. The euro currency weakened slightly in January against the US dollar with the EUR/USD rate moving from 1.22 to 1.21.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
