

Monthly Investment Review

The global economy is still expected to grow at a robust pace, although it is likely to continue moderating from its recent peak. The slowdown in China needs monitoring, but long-term growth prospects are unlikely to be derailed. Short-term inflationary pressures have become elevated in some areas but should ease over time. That said, inflation is likely to be higher than during pre-Covid times. The recent rise in bond yields has been somewhat overdue as they had become excessively low due in part to technical issues over the summer. Equity markets have fallen more sharply than has been seen for many months, although we would argue that 5% to 10% stock market corrections are hardly unusual within a bull market. Although earnings estimates had been particularly positive, recent concerns of the supply chain and semiconductor shortages may temper some earnings numbers for Q3. Despite the rise in bond yields they remain low in a historical context with negative real yields. Hence equities remain attractive on a relative value basis.

Activity

Equity positions in our multi-asset funds were unchanged during September and remain well above benchmark. With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Europe. Sector-wise, the funds are positively biased towards technology, consumer discretionary stocks and financials and negatively biased towards 'bond proxy' areas such as utilities and consumer staples. There was a slight increase in financials at the expense of technology but both remain overweight. Bond positions are well below the middle of ranges whilst the duration of these bonds is below benchmark. Corporate bonds have been increased at the expense of sovereign bonds over the last 16 months.

Market Performance

Equity Markets

World equities (in euro terms) fell by 2.4% in September, giving a total return of 19.3% for the first nine months of 2021. Significant euro currency weakness during 2021 has accentuated returns in a number of key markets, primarily the US and the UK. Local currency returns for the month for the major markets ranged from plus 3.5% in Japan to minus 5.0% in Hong Kong, the latter affected by Chinese clampdowns on certain Hong Kong businesses. Year-to-date the strongest markets in local currency terms been the US (+14.7%) and Europe (+14.1%). Regarding sectors in the US during the month, the strongest returns came from energy (+9.4%) and financials (-1.8%). The main underperforming sector was materials (-7.2%).

Bonds & Interest Rates

The Over Five-Year Euro Government Bond Index fell by 1.8% during September, giving a total return of minus 4.2% for the first nine months of 2021. The German ten-year bond yield rose from minus 0.38% to minus 0.20%. Equivalent US rates rose from 1.31% to 1.49%; due to concerns over rising inflation. The Federal Reserve and other central banks have introduced a wave of liquidity since the outbreak of COVID-19 which has included various forms of asset purchases, to support economies and businesses. The Fed is now becoming slightly more hawkish and is keeping a weather eye on inflation.

Commodities & Currencies

Overall commodity prices rose by 4.9% during September in dollar terms led by energy prices. They are now up 36.4% year-to-date fueling concerns over higher inflation. Oil prices rose by 8% in September and are up 42% so far in 2021. The gold price fell by 3.3% in September to $1,755 per troy ounce. The copper price fell by 6.2% during the month. The euro currency weakened again in September against the US dollar with the EUR/USD rate moving from 1.18 to 1.16. It began the year at 1.22.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
