Retirement Planning Questionnaire for Employers

The purpose of this questionnaire is to ascertain your attitude as an employer to a number of key issues relating to retirement savings provision for your employees; to help you in the decision-making process; and to help your Financial Advisor in making recommendations to you with regard to putting a retirement savings arrangement in place.

It is recommended that you complete this questionnaire with your Financial Advisor.

Employer Details
Name of Employer
Address
Contact Name
Telephone Number	Fax Number
Email Address
Total number of employees (including full-time, part-time, permanent and temporary employees) Total number of employees for which new retirement savings provision is being considered
Key Issues Regarding Retirement Savings Provision for Employees
Trust Requirement/Contract Ownership While a trust arrangement with trustees (usually the employer) is necessary under defined contribution schemes, it does not apply to PRSA arrangements, as the individual PRSA contracts are owned by the individual employees.
Are you, as employed pension scheme?	r, prepared to act as trustee of a defined contribution	YES	NO
	group of individual employees/directors be prepared to rustees?	YES	NO ne company be prepared to appoint outside independent and to pay their ongoing costs?	YES	NO
retirement savings co	eneral your employees would prefer to hold their ontracts in their own names or to have their retirement for them and their dependants?	Own Name	In Trust

Employer Control

If for any reason you, the employers, are not happy with the performance of the defined contribution scheme provider, and if you also act as trustee of the scheme, you will be able to replace the provider at any time. Under PRSAs, where the contract is between the provider and the individual employee, replacing the provider may cause you quite an amount of difficulty. In addition, employees have the right to start/stop, increase/decrease their PRSA contributions at any time. Under a defined contribution scheme, the employer can decide when to permit contribution amounts to be altered (e.g. at scheme renewal date only).

can decide when to permit c					•		oyer
Does your company wish to appointment and the replace				пе	YES	NO
Does your company wish to be altered?	keep control ov	er when pensio	n contributions	can	YES	NO
		Scheme Au	dits
Where there are 100 or more defined contribution scheme addition, the Pensions Board the number of members. The	trustees are re lis entitled to a	equired to prod audit an occupa	uce audit acco tion pension so	unts in res cheme at a	pect of th ny time ir	ie schem	e. In
Is your scheme likely to inclu	ıde 100 or mor	e members?			YES	NO
If YES, are you prepared to p	pay the cost of	producing audi	ted accounts?		YES	NO
	Empl	oyer Contr	ibutions
While there is no obligation you must make a "meaningfortheme.	on you as the e	employer to ma	ke contribution
Does your company intend n	naking contribu	itions on behalf	of employees	? *	YES	NO
If YES, at what level?		% of salary
	Other basis
* Employers are entitled to Employer's PRS contributions are deducted under the "net p		%) on employees' contri	butions to occupational	pension scheme	s and PRSA co	ontracts, where	e these
	Co	ntribution	Limits
If the combined employer contributions, the employee						llowable	total
For tax relief purposes the r	naximum allow	able total cont	ributions to PR	RSAs are a	s follows:
	Ages Up to 29 30 to 39 40 to 49 50 to 54 55 to 59	% of N	et Relevant Ear 15% 20% 25% 30% 35%	[In addit	ion, an in limit of €

The same limits apply for the employee contributions only under a defined contribution scheme.

60 and over

The employer contributions to a defined contribution scheme are treated as a separate payment and there is no benefit-in-kind tax liability on them.

40%

In the literature of the complete of the compl
Is it likely that the combined employee and employer contributions will exceed the maximum figures for tax relief purposes?	YES	NO

RISK Benefits
While risk benefit costs cannot be deducted from PRSA contributions, they can be deducted from PRSA contributions, they can be deducted from PRSA contributions, they can be deducted from PRSA if risk benefit cover is conjunction with a PRSA arrangement, the employer will have to provide this on a sebasis and possibly meet the full cost.	s to b	e pr	ovide	d in
Do you have risk benefit cover under a separate group policy in place for employees at present?	ES		NO
If NO, do you intend providing risk benefit cover for employees?	ES		NO
If you do provide risk benefit cover, are costs to be paid separately by the company?	ES		NO
If you were to put a PRSA deduction facility in place, would it be proposed to extend the deduction facility to cover the payment of Section 785 life cover premiums to enable your employees to pay for life assurance cover for themselves?	ES		NO
Leaving Service
Under PRSA arrangements, employees are entitled to bring the full value of the fund next employment on leaving employment at any stage.	d with	ther	n to t	heir
Under defined contribution schemes, the employee does not have to be given this scheme rules until two years 'qualifying service'* have been completed. If on leaving two years of joining a defined contribution scheme the employee wishes to receive this/her own contributions in cash, this value is subject to 20% tax.	empl he va	oyme lue r	ent wi elatin	thin
* Qualifying service means the period spent as a member of the scheme. Service related to benefits transferred into the scheme also count	s as quali	ifying se	ervice.
Does your company wish to recover the portion of the employee's pension fund relating to the employer's contributions if the employee leaves service within two years of joining the arrangement?	ES		NO
Tax-free Cash
Under PRSAs, 25% of the accumulated fund is available as a tax-free lump sum of defined contribution schemes, employees who have completed 20 years' service are et to 150% of their final earnings as a tax-free lump sum at their normal retirement age, is likely to provide the greater tax-free amount will depend on a number of factors inclue earnings at retirement age, the contribution levels being paid, the number of years over have been paid, the number of years the employee has been employed by the employer growth earned by the funds.	ntitled Whick ding t which	d to r h arra he er n cont	eceive angen nploy tribut	e up nent ee's ions
In your opinion, are the employee's earnings likely to be such, and their individual service likely to be great enough, that the tax-free cash available under a defined contribution scheme is likely to exceed 25% of the	ES		NO accumulated fund?
Retirement Options
Under PRSA arrangements, the employees will be entitled to exercise the full range of [i.e. Annuity Purchase, Approved Retirement Funds (ARFs), and/or taxable cash] on accumulated fund, after taking their tax-free cash (see above).
Under defined contribution schemes, only the monies accumulated by way of AVCs are range of retirement options. The monies accumulated by way of the employer's coemployee's ordinary contributions have to be used to purchase an annuity.
The tax-free cash (as above) may be taken from either the AVC portion of the fund or to the employer's contributions and employee's ordinary contributions.	the po	rtion	apply	ying
In your opinion, will the employees generally wish to avail of the full range of retirement options in relation to the entire fund, instead of having an annuity purchased on their behalf at retirement?	ES		NO

	Investment Cho	oice
The range of investment choice available under defined contribution schemes is likely to be greater than under PRSA arrangements. However, in both cases, a default investment strategy is available.
In your opinion, do investment markets	your employees generally have an underst	tanding of	YES	NO
	s generally be happy to invest contribution y designed for the typical investor?	ns in a default	YES	NO
Employee Input
Provided that there are no 'excluded employees' arising as a result of putting a defined contribution scheme in place, the decision regarding whether retirement savings should be provided through a PRSA salary-deduction arrangement or a defined contribution scheme is at your discretion as the employer. However, you may wish to include the employees in the decision-making processes both with regard to the type of arrangement and with regard to the provider(s) involved.
	you wish the employees to have rement savings decision process?	None	Limited	Total
Signature of Financial Advisor	×		Date
Signature of Employer	X		Date

Telephone: 01 283 1301 Fax: 01 283 1578 Website: www.zurich.ie

 $\label{thm:company} \mbox{Eagle Star Life Assurance Company of Ireland Limited is regulated by the Financial Regulator. }$

Intended for distribution within the Republic of Ireland.

The tax and legislative information contained herein is based on Eagle Star/Zurich's understanding of current practice as at July 2008 and may change in the future.

