Week in Review

- Markets fell last week, as a myriad of topics weighed on investor sentiment. Whilst nothing new to markets, US dollar strength, higher interest rate expectations, trade tensions, and a mixed reaction to corporate earnings were all cited by market analysts.
- Earnings season continues to gather pace with almost half the S&P 500 having reported. Although the market reaction has been muted, the average earnings surprise has been better than Q2, pushing the annual earnings growth to 23.7%.
- Eurozone PMI data weakened somewhat, dragged down by weaker readings in both manufacturing and services. However US GDP growth for Q3 topped expectations by coming in at 3.5% (YoY).

	1 Week Return 19.10.18 to 26.10.18		Year to Date Return 31.12.17 to 26.10.18

The global index was down nearly 3% in euro terms last week, with Asian markets amongst the heaviest fallers.

Oil moved lower, and closed at $68/barrel, as global growth concerns weighed on demand. Gold closed higher at $1233 per troy ounce, helped by a 'risk off' sentiment in markets. Copper finished the week at $6,207 per metric tonne.

The ten year US bond yield finished at 3.08%, whilst the German equivalent closed lower at 0.35.

The EUR/USD rate was at 1.14.

The Week Ahead

Tuesday 30 October	Wednesday 31 October	Friday 2 November
Flash GDP growth for the eurozone goes to print, where the consensus expects a figure of 0.4% (QoQ).	No change in policy is forecast when the Bank of Japan meets for its latest interest rate policy decision.
