Week in Review

- Markets were higher last week as trade tensions between the US and Europe de-escalated following a meeting between President Trump and EC President Juncker. There were also some positive headlines from the ongoing NAFTA negotiations which were welcomed by the market.
- There was an upside surprise for US GDP growth with the Q2 figure coming in at 4.1% (YoY) with growth also revised upwards for the previous year. President Trump cheered the news in a series of tweets, taking the figures as a sign of the success of the administration's policies.
- Earnings data continues to pore in last week, with the Tech sector grabbing the headlines. Both Facebook and Twitter fell heavily in after-hours trading subsequent to posting results, as figures disappointed on sales and user growth. However, earnings continue to be broadly positive, with a slew of further results being released this week.
