

Monthly Investment Review

Richard Temperley

Development

Equity markets have re-tested and in some cases breached the recent lows set in late January/early February, which were driven by US inflation fears and exacerbated by excessive short volatility positioning - the US S&P 500 Index has recently hit its 200-day moving average. Although these issues have receded, other concerns are now worrying investors, especially the threat of a trade war after the US announced tariffs on China - although China's reasonably muted response so far suggests that it wants to de-escalate rather than escalate tensions. In addition, various company specific events have led to a sharp sell-off in technology shares and affected wider risk appetite. Market participants continue to assess the pace of interest rate rises in the US - there have already been six rate rises (of 0.25%) in the cycle, including a rise in March, albeit from historically low levels of effectively zero percent. The Federal Reserve is forecasting two further rate hikes in 2018 due to the strengthening of the labour market and economic activity. However, the macro-economic fundamentals, such as strong economic and corporate earnings growth continue to support equities. In addition, price/earnings multiples for equities have come back into fair-value range. Despite this, we are likely to experience some further volatility during the remainder of 2018. Eurozone government bonds continue to offer little long-term value.

Equity Markets

- World equities (in euro terms) fell by 2.8% in March and have given a total return of minus 3.2% during the first quarter of 2018. Local currency returns in March for the major markets ranged from minus 1.3% in Ireland to minus 4.3% in Australia; the influential US market was down 2.7%. Year-to-date, the best performing markets have been Hong Kong (+0.6%) and the US (-1.2%); the worst being the UK (-8.2%).
- Sectorwise in the US, there was a partial reversal of the long-term trend of cyclical stocks outperforming defensive ones. Bond proxy sectors such as real estate (+3.4%) and utilities (+3.4%) were the best performers during March. Financials were the worst performers (-4.5%). Year-to-date, technology remains is the top performer (+3.2%), whilst telecoms (-8.7%) and consumer staples (-7.8%) are at the bottom of the league table.

Equity & Bond % Returns – March 2018

This graph shows the performance of the major equity markets over the month of March. The returns are shown in both local and euro currencies. The bond index is the Merrill Lynch Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index. Source: Bloomberg, April 2018.

Bonds & Interest Rates

- The Over Five Year Euro Government Bond Index rose strongly in March (+2.4%) in the more risk-off environment, giving a return for the first three months of the year of plus 2.2%. The peripheral markets (such as Spain and Italy) have significantly outperformed the core markets (such as Germany and the Netherlands) year-to-date.
- The German ten-year bond yield fell back during March from 0.66% to 0.50%. The yield began the year at 0.43%. Equivalent US rates fell from 2.86% to 2.74% having begun the year at 2.41%.
- The Federal Reserve increased rates again on 21st March, at the first meeting under new Fed Chairman Jerome Powell, and has indicated two further moves during the remainder of 2018, with more to come in 2019. Eurozone rates are likely to remain at current ultra-low levels for at least 12 months. The Bank of England increased rates, at the start of November 2017, for the first time in a decade by 0.25% to 0.5%, reversing emergency action following the Brexit vote. One or two further rate rises are currently expected during 2018.

Commodities & Currencies

- Commodity prices were mixed in March with energy prices rising 0.6% and non-energy prices falling 0.7%. Raw materials, food and beverages rose 1.0%, 1.3% and 0.4% respectively. Base metals fell 4.1% while precious metals eased 0.5%. The overall commodity index is up 0.8% year-to-date.
- Following a 5% decline in February, the oil price rebounded sharply during March finishing close to its 2018 high. The price has in general been strong for over six months on the back of strengthening demand. The gold price was marginally higher in March rising to $1,318 per troy ounce. Copper declined by close to 3% during the month and is down 9% in the first quarter.
- The euro currency strengthened against the US dollar during the month with the EUR/USD rate moving from 1.22 to 1.23. The euro was a strong currency in 2017.

Activity

Equity positions remain close to the top of ranges in all of the multi-asset portfolios. With regards to geographic positions, the main bias is towards Asia Pacific and Irish equities. The UK has been underweight for some time. The US is neutral to slightly underweight while Japan now has a slightly positive bias. The European position has been reduced to neutral. Sector positions were broadly maintained during the month. The funds are positively biased towards materials and technology stocks and negatively towards real estate and telecoms. Industrial stocks were reduced to neutral. Bond positions are towards the bottom of ranges whilst the duration of the remaining bonds is low.

Annual management charges (AMC) apply. The fund returns shown are net of the AMC deducted by each provider in their unit prices. This will vary for each provider, and any difference will impact the relative performance of the funds shown. The fund returns are based on an investment in the funds and do not represent the returns achieved by individual policies linked to the funds. These fund returns may be before the full AMC is applied to a policy. The actual returns on policies linked to the specified fund will be lower because of the effects of charges and in some cases a higher management charge.
